The Objective

The objective of the game is to host the best parities for five consecutive years in a row by inviting the most popular celebrities of those years.

How It Works

When you start a new game you are provided with a random year between 2000 and 2010 – this is the year you begin your 5 consecutive yearly parties.

Your first step is to invite celebrities to your party. You are allowed to invite up to 6 celebrities to fill out your squad. Who you choose to invite to your squad will directly influence how successful you party is; the most popular celebrities (of each year) will better influence your party score. When you finish building your squad, submit your squad to finalize the invitations.

After submitting your squad your party score is evaluated based on who you invited to be in your squad. The scoring system for each celebrity is calculated based on their time in the spotlight over the years. Each celebrity is given a popularity rating each year, which can increase or decrease depending on their time in the spotlight.

After submitting your squad, you are provided with a damage report containing your party score for the year and individual assessment reports for each of your squad members detailing: if they positively/negatively influenced the party score and what they were doing during that year (which may explain their influence on your party).

Step 4: Mod Your Squad

You have now passed your first year of your 5 consecutive yearly partying and have been provided with a damage report. Given the success or failure of your party, you start planning for next year's party by modifying your squad. You can continue with your current squad if you believe they will do well next year, or you can modify your squad to switch things up a bit.

How It Works

You will loop through step 1 to step 4 for 5 consecutive years in a row. Your party score for each year is totalled to calculate your total party score. Depending on whether or not you want your score to be recorded, you can add your score to the leader board.

Leader Board

You can play as a guest or you can login in and create an account. The benefit of creating an account is that when you add your total party score to the leader board, your username will be posted as well – letting everyone know who's boss.

Are you sure?

Like you, celebrities have their good days and their bad. There is no guarantee your next year's score will be equivalent to this year's score.

Swapping celebrities within your squad is a great way to learn about each celebrities career.
